Refuse Collection Successful, Next Year's Fees to Be Cut

by Betsy Likowski

Once-a-week refuse pick-up has been "very successful to this point," said Kenny Hall, acting director of the Department of Public Works at the budget overview of that department on April 15. The budget is adequate to maintain the same high level of services, he said, in summing up the department's status.

The Department of Public Works is one of only two city departments to have decreases in the funding proposed for Fiscal Year 1999 (FY99). In FY98 the total public works budget was $1,831,300 and this year $1,750,100 is proposed, a decrease of 4.4%. The department staff has done a fine job under less than optimum conditions, said City Manager Michael McLaughlin.

A number of public works employees were on hand as the Greenbelt City Council went through their department's budget in detail. Projects were explained and repeatedly councilmembers queried in a somewhat sympathetic manner the "unmet needs list" in every sub-department, these are items that are needed but for which there are no funds available in the proposed FY99 budget. (Council can and occasionally does change the proposed budget before they vote to accept it.)

Hall was upbeat and informative in his review of last year's accomplishments. These included: helping to construct Greenbrook Lake; planting over 10,000 annuals, 7400 bulbs and 5000 pansies; erecting fencing at Buddy Attick Park to protect trees from beavers; and using the soil from the Greenbrook Lake Project to make berms at Northway Ballfields at a savings to the city of thousands of dollars.

Recycling and Refuse

"Since we've transferred to once a week there's a definite reduction in the tonnage taken to the landfill," said Hall. Public Works will continue to monitor the odor situation, he continued. The service fee for refuse and recycling is proposed to be reduced $4 to $168.80 per year per household in FY99. The recycling only fee will still be $18. Services fees are projected to pay for amount recycled is about the same.

The trash collectors would like to return to twice a week collection and hire a third crew which would collect the $393,300 of the $442,600 in FY99 for waste collection. The Landfill Disposal Rebate will pay for most of the rest ($57,400). It is projected that the waste collection budget account will have a small excess of $18,800 in FY99, which McLaughlin said would be a cushion against expected higher costs in future years.

The city reduced refuse pick-up to once a week and city crews began picking up recyclables about six months ago. Complaints about the service reduction have stopped and only ten households have signed up for and receive twice a week trash collection for an annual cost of $112. The amount of refuse collected has dropped by 12.7% and the recyclables or have curbside collection for single family homes. They now work an hour longer than they did under the old system and say the new system creates extra physical strain and is taking a toll on them.

Councilmembers asked about various aspects of the situation. Thomas White wondered how many people voluntarily put their trash out on the curb. W. Bowman Ferguson, management analyst who is currently acting recycling coordinator, replied that about 20% to 30% do so.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts passed on complaints about a household that continually puts out large appliances. Ferguson See PUBLIC WORK, page 5

Rte. 1 vs Edmonston Rd. Improvement Discussed

by Elaine Skolnik

Councilmembers Thomas White and Rodney Roberts and City Manager Michael McLaughlin attended a meeting at the U.S. Corps of Engineers headquarters in Baltimore on April 17. The purpose of the meeting, called by Steve Elinsky of the Corps, was to discuss the possibility of improving U S 1 as an alternative to improving MD 201 (Kenilworth/Edmonston Rd.) from Cherrywood Lane to Sunnyside Ave. Participating in the meeting also were two representatives from the State Highway Administration (SHA) and Michael Sazonov, project director for the recently opened United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) office complex on Sunnyside Ave.

Elinsky described problems with improving Edmonston Road above Cherrywood Lane caused by the presence of wetlands that would be disturbed along Edmonston Road. He told the News Review that mitigation was required for a little over an acre of wetlands at a 3 to 1 replacement ratio. The Corps has already made a preliminary determination that the mitigation site will be located near the Paint Branch Golf Course. The Corps and the Maryland Department of the Environment will publicize their findings and request public comment in the near future.

However, any hope that improvements made to U S 1 could substitute for improvements to Edmonston Road were dashed. SHA representatives pointed out that preliminary traffic counts indicate that it was unlikely that even an improved U S 1 would have enough capacity, particularly in light of the large number of new developments proposed — some already under construction on this major road. They also noted that the intersections of Sunnyside and Edmonston and Edmonston and Powder Mill were already at a failure level of service.

Sazonov told the News Review that USDA was anxious to move ahead with Edmonston Road improvements between Cherrywood Lane and Sunnyside Ave. which is being funded by the federal agency. He said that he believed USDA would be willing to do just the Sunnyside/Edmonston Rd. intersection and give the State the money to handle the remainder of the project from Cherrywood to Sunnyside.

The city council is expected to discuss the matter at a future city council meeting.

Council Okays Youth-Police July Basketball Tournament

by Al Geiger

At its April 13 regular meeting, the Greenbelt City Council authorized Dana Rabois, the city crisis intervention counselor, to apply for a grant from the Governor's neighborhood crime and substance abuse prevention program. The purpose of the grant program is to help community organizations initiate or continue community-based activities focused on youth and dealing with crime, substance abuse and violence. The grant, if forthcoming, would be used to conduct a city-sponsored basketball tournament in which police officers and youths will play together on four person teams. If approved by the state, grant funds would be used to help cover the cost of uniforms, equipment and stipends for referees and scorekeepers. A grant of $5,870 will be requested.

Rabois will also request that the city contribute in-kind services, such as a waiver of facility fees and the use of city equipment. Private and corporate donations will be sought for such things as awards and refreshments. If the grant is denied or approved in a lesser amount, council may be asked to support the program monetarily.

The tournament, tentatively scheduled for July 24 at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center, will be publicized under the name "Hooplaw" to encourage police and youths from Prince George's and Montgomery Counties and the District of Columbia to participate. Rabois anticipates as many as 200 participants, with a goal of 160. Afterward, she will evaluate the tournament and data gathered as part of her doctoral dissertation.

Council's unanimous approval of the grant application included the city's contribution of the in-kind services.

A Proclamation

Mayor Judith Davis read a proclamation recognizing "Municipal Government Week," April 20-24. The city will fly a special flag and the proclamation will be posted. Teams of Greenbelt 6th graders (and 5th graders from Springhill Lake Elementary, since Springhill Lake no longer has sixth graders) are competing in "It's Municipal Government," a program conducted by Beverly Palau. Finals will be held on April 24 at the Community Center.

Memorial Park

Sheldon Goldberg and Dorothy Pyles, both of Greenbelt East, spoke in favor of a memorial of some kind to Mike Vaccaro and Jack Davis somewhere in Schrom Hills Park. Council will refer the matter to the Community Relations Advisory Board (CRAB), inviting advocates to give additional information to CRAB on what is desired.

Charlene McAdams, on behalf of the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee (GEAC), requests that a preliminary amount of $10,000 be included in the budget for this purpose. Mayor Davis asked if GEAC would supply matching funds. McAdams said that GEAC had not considered this possibility but could probably do so if necessary. Mayor Davis stated that this petition will be considered during the budget process.

Cleaning Services

A resolution for the negotiated purchase of cleaning services at the Aquatic and Fitness Center was introduced for first reading. The present contractor, Framoby General Services, with whom staff is very satisfied, is willing to continue these services at a cost of $1,215 per month — the same rate they have charged for the past two years.

License Agreement

Council voted to authorize the city manager to sign the license agreement authorizing Hunting Ridge to construct and use a parking lot on city property. This agreement was drafted by city attorney Robert Manzi and has been approved by the Hunting Ridge Condominium Association Board of Directors and signed by the association president, Ronald Brooks.

Other Actions

City Manager Michael McLaughlin reported that the Maryland legislature has approved a grant of $325,000 for Community Center window replacement and renovation of the fire department facility. Council and McLaughlin discussed how and when the city could show its appreciation to Senator Leo Green and Delegates Joan Pitkin, James Hubbard and Mary Conroy for their work on Greenbelt's behalf.

Mayor Davis thanked the Recreation Department for their hard work during the schools' spring break and the Public Works Department and especially its horticulture group for the beautiful spring flower displays.

Council discussed several suggestions to encourage stronger participation of the Youth Advisory Committee, including that they be proactive as well as taking referrals from council.

Consent Agenda

Council approved the consent agenda that contained the following items: the city clerk's 1997 election report was referred to the Board of Elections for review and comment and an ad hoc task See COUNCIL, page 2

I join everyone involved in Prince George's County education in welcoming Mrs. Gore to this conference," said Congressman Hoyer.

Special Registration For Kindergarten Set

The Prince George's County Public School System has scheduled a special kindergarten registration to be held from April 27 - May 1, for Prince George's County children who will be entering public school in the upcoming 1998-99 school year.

State law mandates that all children who will be five years old on or before December 31 must attend kindergarten before entering grade one. A child's birth certificate should be presented as legal verification of age. Although kindergarten registration may be accepted any time during the year, parents are encouraged to make a special effort to register their children during the special kindergarten registration dates of April 27 - May 1.

Only a parent or court-appointed guardian may register a child. Proof of Prince George's County residence is required for admission to the county's public school system. Parents/guardians who are new residents of the county or who are registering a student for the first time, must complete the Affidavit of Disclosure (PA 15) as required by State law, to establish proof of legal residency. People who do not know the school in which to register their child should contact the Department of Pupil Accounting and School Boundaries at 301-952-6300.

The Maryland State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene also requires proof that children have received certain immunizations before they can be admitted into kindergarten. The required immunizations are: four DPT shots, three polio shots, and two MMRs (two measles and one mumps/rubella shot).

In addition, State law requires that each child shall have a physical examination for admittance into the Maryland public school system. The examination must be completed within nine months prior to entrance or six months after entrance into the school system. Physical examination form (SR6), as designated by the Department of Education and the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, shall be used as verification of this requirement; and the physical examination shall be completed by a physician or certified nurse practitioner. For additional information related to the special kindergarten registration, people should replied that special cases are looked at and a special fee was being considered. Currently there are fees for one time special collections or if special trash is placed on the side, not the front.

The recycling units in the Roosevelt Center Mall have worked well, as have the units on the ballfields, said Richard Mills, head of the parks crew.

Parks and Landscaping

There are 496 acres of parkland in the city and for FY99 $738,000 is proposed for the maintenance of the parks, an increase of 4.9% over last year's budget but well below this year's estimated expenses of $754,900. Among the items needed by the department but not in the FY99 budget are pack tanks costing $1,500. This would greatly facilitate the weed spraying program begun under former City Manager Dan Hobbs to spray the curb and gutters along Southway, Crescent Road, Mandan Road, Hanover Parkway and Cherrywood Lane, explained City Horticulturalist Bill Phelan. "I personally wouldn't be hurt if we didn't spray weeds in gutters," said Phelan. Roberts said he would not worry so much about weeds and Councilmember Alan Turnbull said he was for eliminating spraying. Hall explained that if the weeds are not kept under control it takes much longer for the city crews to cut back the weeds. For a spray program Phelan said the requested pack tanks would use less chemicals and a safer chemical than they use with the present equipment. Currently they use three types of chemicals - two pre-emergent and "Round-Up." The latter would be the only one used with the new equipment.

The median strips in Mandan

Road and Hanover Parkway will be replanted since the Bradford Pear trees will not last long. The replacement plants include perennial flowers, low evergreens, crepe myrtles, black gum trees, and sweet gum trees bred to not produce the spiky, round seed carriers. The latter two types of plants have beautiful autumn foliage.

Streets

All the city streets and city equipment are taken care of by the public works department. With close to 25 miles of streets to maintain, $521,600 is proposed for FY99, down $43,000 from FY98. "Our streets as a whole are in good to excellent condition," said Hall. This year resurfacing work is slated for Greenway Center Drive, Hanover Parkway in Greenbriar, Mandan Road in Windsor Green, and Hillside Road. Work is also planned for Breezewood Drive and Northway.

To maintain all the equipment used for more than one job in the city $249,400 is proposed for FY99. Mayor Judith Davis questioned the equipment listed under unmet needs, querying whether the department has discretionary funds for such items. There are not any discretionary funds in his budget, Hall replied. The items in question were $2,000 for a computer with CD-Rom and modem for the mechanics, $4,500 for transmission flusher/coolant recovery, and $3,000 replacement lighting in old garages.

Bus

The driver of the Greenbelt Connection, Norman Lockerman, will retire at the end of FY98. It should be a smooth transition, said Hall, since he will be replaced by the driver now used as a substitute. The ridership is expected to remain about the same this fiscal year at 6,000 and it will continue to be heavily subsidized by city funds at $60,900 of the $67,300 for the service in the FY99 budget.

Roberts suggested using it for commuters in the mornings and three other councilmembers also seemed interested in the idea. Turnbull inserted a note of caution noting that metro would be mad at the city for competing with them. And McLaughlin noted "we can't run a fixed route service any faster than Metro."

Miscellaneous

Personnel expenses are one of the biggest portions of the public works budget and this year a slight decrease is proposed to bring it to $1,499,500. Two positions will not be filled, instead part-time and temporary workers will be used as needed. Hall said although it is not in the budget, he could use at least an additional part-time worker, if not a full time person, to help clean the Community Center.

White asked if Hall had considered contracting out the cleaning services at the Community Center. This is done at the Aquatic and Fitness Center, explained Hall, but he maintained the way the buildings are now cleaned is the best overall system.

In FY99 $489,100 is slated for public works administration; $1,300 is proposed for the city cemetery; and $46,100 for the Roosevelt Center Mall. Although not in the FY99 budget $13,000 was requested so a system of security cameras could be installed at the public works compound.

GREENBELT AQUATIC & FITNESS CENTER 1998 SPRING MINI-SESSION

In-person registration, first-come, first-served basis. All classes have a limit on enrollment. Early registration improves your chances of getting the class you want!! All registrants must sign up at the Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center for aquatic & fitness classes.

CLASS FEES: All class fees are noted in the course list. A 10% discount will be given to all senior citizens, 60 years old and over, for non-senior classes.

REFUNDS: The Greenbelt Aquatic & Fitness Center reserves the right to cancel classes due to insufficient registrants or causes beyond its control. Refunds will be made if classes are canceled by the Center. Other refunds will be made according to the provisions in the City of Greenbelt Resolution No. 65, which also requires that refund requests, for valid reasons, are to be submitted immediately in writing to the GAFC.

CITY RESIDENCY: Greenbelt residents are those who pay taxes to the City of Greenbelt AND are eligible to vote in City elections. That is as it should be, as our residents pay taxes to support the Recreation Centers and the Aquatic & Fitness Center in our community. However, just because someone has a Greenbelt address, does not necessarily mean they pay taxes to the City of Greenbelt and are able to vote in City elections. We want to be fair to the people whose tax money supports our programs. If you are not sure that you have a Greenbelt address, are able to vote in City elections, and pay City taxes, call 301-397-2204.

All registrants registering as a resident non-passholder must show proof of address to receive Greenbelt resident status. Acceptable Proof: Valid license or current lease.

MAINSTREAMING: Anyone who is physically, mentally, and/or emotionally challenged is encouraged to participate in any of the Aquatic & Fitness Center's programs. If you need any special assistance, please call 301-397-2208 or TTY 301-474-1811 and ask for Karen Haseley.

The Sound Scene

by Nick Mydra

Classical music came to Greenbelt April 11. The Wilson Chamber players performed a concert in the gymnasium of the new Greenbelt Community Center to benefit the Greenbelt Arts Center, which is in the midst of floor renovations because of water damage.

Although the community center gym also doubles as a basketball court, acoustically it is quite good, and performers can be heard all the way to the back of the room. But there are two things that would help "set the stage." First better lighting. The gym lights can't be lowered, only turned on or off. Secondly, a back-drop for the performers is needed. At present, the audience has to stare at a clock on the back wall of the stage and, out of the corner of their eyes, glimpse the "Exit" sign glowing. I know, I know, the city was having trouble finding money to fix all the windows in the place, and this is obviously lower on the priority scale. Still, these improvements would help the ambiance.

The Saturday evening performance featured singer Elizabeth Barber, Muriel Balzer on piano and Albert Hunt on clarinet. The music ranged from unknown composers of the 15th century Renaissance to the 20th century American Aaron Copland. The bios of the three performers read like a Who's Who of the musical world. All have received degrees from prestigious music schools, have spent time teaching, and have performed with numerous musical groups in the States and abroad.

The program started out with soprano Elizabeth Barber singing three anonymous 15th century songs while accompanying herself on the autoharp. After each, she sang a modern version, with Balzer playing the piano. It was an interesting contrast.

Next, Muriel Balzer played the Nocturne in C# Minor by Chopin - music for a pianist by a pianist. Balzer, like Barber, has great technique and is a master of her instrument. It's a shame we didn't get to hear her perform more as a soloist. Most of her playing was as an accompaniment to the other two performers.

Barber sang an aria from the opera "Mignon" accompanied by Balzer on the piano. Barber showed very good control throughout her vocal range.

The first half ended with Albert Hunt playing the Sonata Opus 120 arranged for clarinet by Johannes Brahms. Muriel Balzer was on the piano. The piano and clarinet have very different sounds and don't necessarily marry well. Maybe that was why I kept wondering whether the clarinet was out of tune.

But after the intermission, Hunt played five parts of the "Dance Preludes" by Lutoslawski, with Balzer on piano, and again his tone seemed to be off. It wasn't until the third part, the allegro giocoso, that his sound improved, perhaps because he had fiddled with the clarinet just before the third part began.

Muriel Balzer followed with "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child," played softly yet with flair and dramatic verve. "At the River," and "Peter, Go Ring Dem Bells" featured soprano Barber singing much in the style of Marian Anderson. Balzer was on piano, providing a nice balance.

The evening ended with Albert

Hunt playing motives from the opera "Rigoletto." Hunt has good fingering technique, and this piece let him show it off with a flair. To quote "Oliver," "more, please."

Since this was a benefit performance, all three musicians were asked to provide part of the evening's entertainment; perhaps as a result, the concert seemed a bit fragmented. There didn't seem to be a theme to pull the entire performance together.

"Fences" by August Wilson In a Gripping Performance

by Altoria Bell Ross

If you want to see skillful acting and intense staging, and experience the tension that only a well-written play can build, then you want to see Fences, playing at the Greenbelt Arts Center, April 24 - 26, May 1 - 3 and 8 and 9.

Fences, written by August Wilson, is a drama about the frustrations of a former baseball player in the Negro leagues who lives in the industrial North. The action takes place in the 1950s, a year after Jackie Robinson breaks baseball's color barrier. The play revolves around Troy, the protagonist, and how his disappointment in not making the major leagues affects his family and his dealings with the community. This production, directed by Norman Grant and produced by Gene Duarte and Carla Howard, portrays the complexity, despair, anguish, and at times, the light-heartedness of Troy's world.

This play originated in April 1985 at the Yale Repertory Theater in New Haven, Connecticut. It opened on Broadway two years later, starring James Earl Jones as Troy, Mary Alice as his long-suffering but assertive wife, Ray Aranha as his best friend, and Frankie Faison as Troy's brother, who is brain damaged as a result of fighting in World War II.

In the Greenbelt production, Troy (J. Alexander Washington), who is now a garbage man, is married to Rose (Allison P. Simpson). Rose encourages Troy to do right by his sons, Cory (Who Chatman) and Lyons (Richard Briggs and Willie Harris), and his brother Gabriel (Earl Hargrove). His best friend, Jim Bono (Carlton O. Ray), also tries to keep Troy on the straight and narrow. Raynell (Cherelle Kante), who is Troy's "accidental" daughter, brings with her sunshine to lighten this heavy drama.

Good Acting

Washington spins Troy's tales like a natural storyteller - gestures and all. He also commands the roles of husband and father with authority. Washington renders many monologues and with the exception of a few times, he masters them flawlessly. Those monologues where he holds conversations with death are executed particularly well.

The beautiful leading lady, Simpson, with a singing voice to match, delivers her lines smoothly and consistently. Simpson plays her part with sweetness and compassion, especially when talking to Gabriel, Lyons, and Raynell. However, her performance should have had more toughness when she was confronting Troy, particularly when he tells her he is going to be somebody's daddy and she's not the momma.

Ray's booming-Satchmo voice and his responsive facial expressions and body language as Bono lend emphasis to his ability to deliver and receive punch lines. The audience got them, too.

Hargrove is spellbinding as Troy's brain-damaged brother. Hargrove portrays Gabriel in a childlike manner, which is fitting. His vapid expressions and halting speech make his character frighteningly realistic. One expects the people in the white coats to come and take him away at any moment.

On Saturday evening, April 18, Greenbelt resident Richard Briggs played Lyons. Director Grant selected two Lyons because one of the actors was unable to perform in all of the shows. Grant is to be congratulated for his progressive-mindedness in casting a Caucasian actor in what commonly would be viewed as an African American role. Grant says his casting decision was not arbitrary. He said the script says nothing about the race of Lyons' mother, leaving open the possibility that she could have been Caucasian. In this scenario, Lyons looks more Caucasian than African American. Grant says he wants to see how accepting the African American community would be of this Lyons. Although Briggs gives an energetic and earnest performance, his appearance as Troy's son was initially confusing to the audience. In addition, when Troy hurls racial epithets at Briggs, it is at best, disconcerting. It will be interesting to see Harris' portrayal of this character.

Kante is darling as Raynell. She is the ray of hope the family needs, along with her big brother, Cory, who is played by Chatman. Chatman's athletic build gives credibility to his part as a high school football player and later as a stately Marine. Cory matures on stage. The wide-eyed Cory sulks and whines in his teen years, but converses as the mature adult he has become when he returns home for his father's funeral.

The Set and Staging

The set, which is on loan from The Studio Theater in Washington, D.C., looks authentic - the fence, the porch, the screen door, the clothesline. The baseball on the rope that Troy and Cory practice swinging at is cleverly hung from a beam in the theater's ceiling, in lieu of a tree.

Cory and his father fight several times in the play. The blocking is artfully carried out. However, at other times the placement of the actors doesn't quite work. On several occasions, Cory turns his back to the center audience or stands directly in front of someone seated on the porch. At the end, Lyons shares the spotlight with Gabriel.

Tension

Fences has plenty of conflict, and it escalates in the second act when Troy tells Rose about his affair and the baby-to-be while Gabriel is trying to hold a disjointed conversation with her simultaneously. This scene is really gripping, and the timing is artful. The other scenes where the tension is thick occur when Troy and Cory brawl and when Gabriel is uncomfortable being in Troy's presence after Gabriel rents a room from a neighbor instead of living with Troy. The characters' interactions in these scenes bring out the tension a powerful play demands.

Parental Discretion

Adult topics such as adultery and fornication are woven throughout the play. Several of the characters use profanity. Parents should use discretion in bringing their children to this performance. Outside of these issues, it is a show worth seeing.
